

Introduction My dream is to become a doctor

Medicine is one of the professions that many dream of practicing in the future, and this profession is also a dream that many parents seek when educating their children at a young age. night to help their children study.

In addition to providing all the things that their children may need in order to help them study and study their lessons better so that they can easily and successfully achieve their dream of being skilled doctors in the future.

As there is no higher profession in life than the profession of medicine, for a person to be a reason for treating others is considered one of the highest tasks that an individual can perform in life, and there are many people who have spent their lives helping and treating others in order to see these in the best and best Adverbs.

Introduction to the subject of an essay on the medical profession

Medicine is considered a noble human profession that contributes to helping people and earning the great reward from God Almighty, as it is an invaluable profession, as causing the treatment of others cannot be equal to anything in the world, as human health is a treasure that a person suffers throughout his life in the province Therefore, the doctor makes people's lives better and better than his condition while he was sick.

Doctors help the patient feel calm, comfortable, and reassured that there is someone who will ease their pain and cause them to ease their illness and reach a treatment that suits the condition of the disease. Therefore, doctors always have a great place in people's lives.

It is one of the professions that requires a person to have some good qualities, such as honesty, morals, good understanding with others, and love to help others as well, in addition to the need to have a love of knowledge and a passion for learning.

Characteristics of the medical profession

The medical profession has many advantages that make many students aspire to be doctors in the future, and these features include the following:

On a personal level, practicing medicine helps in broadening human perceptions in general and makes him recognize God's creativity in his creation through discovering the composition of the human body and every part in it.

The medical profession also helps a person deal more deeply with other scientific minds than his teachers and benefit from their experiences.

Opening the human mind more in depth in the study of anthropology and the discovery of modern methods in finding a cure for diseases.

From a social point of view, the medical profession gives its owner an advantage that puts him in a prominent social position among people. As you make people have all the appreciation and respect for him and listen to him with pride and fascination with what he says.

From an economic point of view, the medical profession brings a high salary to the doctor, which qualifies him to live a decent social life.

The mission of medicine is generally a criterion for the success and progress of countries and the production of their people and their ability to find solutions and innovations.

Honor of the medical profession

The profession of medicine is considered one of the honorable professions that people can pursue, and this is due to the following:

The medical profession is one of the professions that cares about people's lives and their continuity. It is the main profession of the Prophet of God, Jesus, peace be upon him, and his miracle that he revealed.

It is also one of the professions called for by our Holy Prophet, may God bless him and grant him peace, when he ordered the treatment of diseases.

Therefore, it is an honor for a person to be blessed by God with the grace of helping people heal from diseases and making them a reason for people's healing.

The medical profession is considered one of the professions of high honor that works to preserve the human mind as well.

Medicine is considered one of the professions for which there was a continuous demand for the continuation of life on earth.

As the process of medicine mainly contributes to the reproduction of humanity through access to many methods that help individuals who suffer from reproductive problems.

Where medicine contributes to facilitating life and preserving both the mother and the child at the same time.

The medical profession also contributes to protecting people from exposure to various diseases that cause the destruction of societies.

The medical profession makes doctors do a lot of research that enables them to understand the causes of epidemics in societies and help to solve them; This made doctors a great deal in all countries, especially when crises occurred.

Because of the multiplicity of branches of medicine in all different fields, medicine has contributed to the advancement and progress of societies throughout the ages.

Seeking medicine is one of the obligations of sufficiency in Islamic law, as a group of Muslims must do it in order for the other group to drop the duty.

Since the issue of curing diseases and improving the body is a basic requirement for the continuation of human life and is necessary for the life of every individual.

As the preservation of human health is the duty of every individual towards himself.

Medical ethics

Doctors must be characterized by the ethics that qualify them to treat patients and deal with them in a correct manner, and these ethics include the following:

Commitment to good morals that preserve the patient's dignity by providing the required care, taking into account the necessary boundaries between the doctor and the patient.

The doctor must also be characterized by wisdom and accuracy in expression and integrity in management in order to be able to read the examinations properly and be able to diagnose the disease.

Using the appropriate method to tell the patient about his condition without exaggerating the situation or underestimating his condition if it is serious, then giving him the appropriate treatment and medication for his condition.

The doctor must also be gentle and gentle in his dealings with the patient, while being patient and wishing him recovery.

The doctor must also be flexible in dealing with patients, take into account their special and critical circumstances, and be patient with them, especially in the event that patients suffer from high blood pressure, diabetes, or other diseases that require special attention from the doctor.

Conclusion of an essay on I would love to be a doctor

In conclusion, we have learned all the useful information on the topic of expressing I would love to be a doctor, while recognizing the importance of the medical profession, whether socially, economically or scientifically.